

Pictures

All pictures contain many subjects. For instance, we could categorize a picture of a couple kids on a playground 1) by the kids' names, 2) by the game they are playing, 3) by the playground 4) by the season of the year, etc. The HHS has organized its picture collection by what the photographer wanted the viewer to see. If the photographer wanted to highlight the new playground equipment at the school, we put the picture with school pictures. If he or she wanted to feature kids enjoying themselves during summer vacation, we filed the picture under Children. If the children were models, showing off the latest fashions, we would file the picture under Fashion, but we don't have any of those.

We have organized the collection using a word-for-word, not letter-for-letter alphabetical arrangement, meaning that East Hardwick would appear ahead of Eastern Anywhere, generally following the rules set by the American Library Association.

We have subdivided the collection of pictures into large categories, and we have subdivided the large categories into subcategories when a the category grew clumsy because of its size. We think this organization gives the researcher a more browsable and informative index. Seeing all the Businesses listed together reveals a lot, and seeing them subdivided by type of business reveals even more.

We story the picture in three different sizes. By far, most pictures fit in an 9" x 12" folder; they have no special marking. Some fit into a 9" x 15" folder, and we indicate that with an asterisk (*) before the name. Some require a larger folder and get stored in 25" x 19" folders in our map cases, and we indicate that with two asterisks () before the name.

Where confusion might arise about what a category or subcategory contains, we have included notes to clarify the contents. Where multiple folders contain closely related images, we make See also references, e.g. Agriculture ... See also Farms. Where we can anticipate that people might use a term we do not use, we make a See reference; e.g. Buildings—Rickard Block, See Buildings—Hill Block.

Individuals includes pictures, frequently studio portraits, of a single person. See also Families and Friends. Women appear under the name they had when pictured. A note in square brackets behind a name indicates either their married name [m. Doe] or their birth name [b. Doe]. Names in parentheses are nicknames. A date after a name indicates that the folder contains a picture of that date. Those with no dates contain multiple pictures taken at different times.*
